TUESDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 19. THE COAL TRADE - The Washington Star, under the head of Georgetown affairs, says:-

"There are indications of an early resumption of the coal trade. The channel has been sound. ed, and it is certain that as heavy vessels as have yet been engaged in the shipment of coal can be brought through without any difficulty. The soundings were in some points two feetdeeper than before. We are informed by one of the principal shippers that the Board of Public Works of Maryland has reduced the folls upon coal from Cumberland to Georgetown 24 ets. per ton."

MR. J. M. BOTTS'S PLAN.--Hon. John M. Botts proposes a plan of reconstruction for the Southern States in the shape of a bill, which, it is reported, will be submitted to the House for its action this session. The preamble sets forth that "no expediency can justify the recognition by Congress of any State governments which have been created since the late rebellion on a basis violative of the great fundamental principles of public law, and which rest upon a foundation of disloyalty and disaffection to the Government of the United States." The bill sets aside "the so-called State governments," and provides for appointment of provisional governors by the President, each governor to be assisted by two members of the executive council and one secretary of the commonwealth.-The provisional governor of each State shall call a convention, and it shall be the duty of the said convention to form a constitution for their respective States, to be submitted to the qualified voters of the State; and if adopted by them, then to be submitted to Congress for its approval or disapproval, and if approved, each State shall thereupon respectively be entitled to resume its full functions and powers in the Government of the United States, and not otherwise. Before any state shall be permitted to resume its functions and duties in the Government of the United States, it shall provide: 1st. That It is stated that the bridge across the Potomac | no part of the debt created in behalf of the rebellion shall ever be paid; 2d. That no attempt shall ever be made to revive the institution of slavery; 3d. That impartial suffrage and the right to testify before the courts shall be allowed to all, without respect to race or color. A stringent test oath is provided, but a clause gives two-thirds of Congress the power to remove disability and restore rebels to citizenship. The military is only to be employed when called upon to aid the civil authorities, and when a State is admitted its citizens are all relieved from the penalties of treason. - Washington Star.

> SAULSBURY VS. SEWARD .- In a debate in the Senate, yesterday, Mr. Davis said that Secretary Seward wanted the approbation of all pa-

> Mr. Saulsbury could not sit in his seat and hear such a man as Wm. H. Seward eulogized. The tingle of that bell was yet ringing in his ears, and he could never forgive this man who had trampled on the liberties of his countrymen. Wm. H. Seward was the Mephistopheles of the age. Andrew Johnson was blamed, but what could he do with Wm. H. Seward on one side and Edwin M. Stanton on the other. They were now trying to drag the President down, and make him compromise with Congress, but he (Mr. S.) hoped in God he would have nothing to do with them. The President was entitled to the gratitude of the civilized world, and if he would discard these bad men and put them out of his councils the American people would rally around him. He charged upon Wm. H. Seward that he had told a renegade Breckinridge democrat that the government had sent $200,000 into Maryland to carry the election of 1861.

EPIGRAMS.-The National Republican, has scattered through its columns hits at Stevens's bill. We collect the tollowing :

[COMMUNICATED. MR. MUNSEY'S SERMON ON SUNDAY NIGHT.

Like a beautiful song, the original melody pervading and easily discernable in all its parts, the ariations only lending additional fascinations and enchaning by its magic influence the entire audience, holding them spell bound, and "Enforcing attention like deep harmony," was the sermon of Rev. Mr. Munsey, on Sunday night last, at the Methodist Episcopal Church South, from the text:

"For now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face; now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known."-Cor.

Such a discourse has seldom, if ever been conception, mode of expression, beauty and force of imagination, power of delineation and eloquence, united to a depth of thought, and great research—"take it for all in all," it was remarkable. His style may, by some critics, be regarded as too florid, his language too exalted, and his discourses too metaphisical to suit a promiscuous audience, but to the enlightened and intelligent mind it was a feast rarely partaken of, and enjoyed with a keen relish .-His arguments were unanswerable, and his logic convincing, but to attempt a synopsis of his sermon would be doing an act of injustice to the gifted preacher, and beyond the poor pow ers of the writer. To appreciate him he must be heard. It is not usual to refer, in the public prints, in this manner to sermons from the pulpit; but in the present case the writer could not refrain from expressing his own feelings, which are, indeed, similar to those expressed by all who listened to the discourse referred to. NOTICE TO SHIPPERS.
